E-mail

Peter is writing an e-mail to a restaurant manager.

From: peter1212@hellomail.com To: info@rainbowrestaurant.com
 Date: 28 July, 20XX (Sat) Time: 1:53 pm
 Subject: Complaints about Rainbow Restaurant

Dear Manager,

- 5 I am writing to complain about the service and food quality of your restaurant. My family and I had dinner there last night and we had an awful experience.

- I called to reserve a table there two weeks ago. When my family and I arrived at the restaurant, the staff member at the counter
 10 told us to queue outside because my name was not on the reservation list. We told him about the call but he didn't check the record for me. We had to wait for an hour to get into the restaurant.

- The food was even worse. We ordered the set dinner but the 15 dishes were tiny like afternoon snacks. The chicken was burnt and the pumpkin soup was cold. The rice was very hard so I had to chew it many times. There were only two thin apple slices and a few pieces of lettuce in the salad.

- Please give us a refund and take actions to improve the service
 20 and food quality of your restaurant.

Yours faithfully,
 Peter Wong

Overweight? Check for yourself!

Worrying about getting fat?
Come and check if you have these bad habits!

1. Skipping breakfast

Breakfast is the first meal of the day. It provides you with nutrients and energy to maintain your daytime performance. Some research found that people tend to eat more afterwards if they skip breakfast!

2. Lack of sleep

Research found that your body will release hormones that signal hunger when you don't have enough sleep. It means you will tend to eat more high-fat food and absorb more energy.

3. Drinking juice instead of water

Some people replace water with juice because they think it is tastier and healthier. However, your body needs water to clear toxins. Besides, the amount of sugar in a bottle of juice is high. 500ml of orange juice probably contains 50g of sugar, which is over the amount you need a day!

4. Eating after-dinner snacks

Your body is ready to rest at night so it digests food slowly. A big feast will affect its functions. If you really feel hungry after dinner, try having some light snacks such as fruit and nuts.
