Part C

The school magazine is going to include an article on the differences between school life in the past and now. Joseph, the editor of the school magazine, has interviewed the principal, Mr Pang, on this topic. Fill in the blanks with used to or be used to with the correct forms of the verbs in the brackets.

Joseph : Mr Pang, would you please tell us about the differences between the school life in the past and the present?

Mr Pang : Of course! All the teachers 1. used to write (write) on the blackboard with chalks in the past. Now most of them 2. are used to teaching (teach) with whiteboards and markers or even 'Smart-boards' in their classes.

Joseph : So how about the school life of the students? Is there any difference?

Mr Pang : The students 3. used to go (go) to the library to search for information for their homework. Now they 4. are used to researching (research) on the Internet.

Joseph : What do you think about this change?

Mr Pang : I think there's nothing wrong with researching on the Internet, but students 5. are not used to writing (not / write) with pen any more. This may affect their written exams. Students should 6. get used to taking (take) notes with pen and paper during lessons.

Joseph : That's true. I barely know how to write with a pen now!

Mr Pang : Haha...Practice makes perfect! For me, I 7. didn't use to work (not / work) with a computer several years ago but now I 8. 'm not used to living (not / live) without a computer for a day!

Joseph : I see. Thanks a lot for sharing your views with me, Mr Pang.
