Description of Giant Pandas

Giant pandas belong to the bear family. ~~My favourite lovely pandas are going to live forever! Don't you dare touch them!~~

They are large and plump. Their fur is white and black in colour. They have large and black patches around their eyes, over their ears, and across their round bodies.

W

Which noun can be used to refer to the animals which do not eat meat or fish?

Their eyes are very small and their vision is poor. They mainly feed on bamboo, but their diet also includes honey, yams and fruit. They are mainly vegetarians.

W

Write a correct preposition here.

Total Number & Where They Can Be Found

Giant pandas are endangered animals. There are about 1,600 giant pandas left in on earth today and they can find be found in central-western and south-western China.

W

The voice of this sentence is wrong. Use the correct one.

Why Are They Endangered?

Since human population is increasing and people have to clear large pieces of land, giant pandas are losing their living places. Besides, people kill them for their fur illegally. Also, their low birth rate is another reason why they are endangered.

S
Add a connective to show the cause and effect.

W
