A Nice Weekend

The Auto Theme Park in our downtown area is finally open! The park has attracted many visitors since its opening because of its new facilities. It is not far from my home. I took my younger brother John to the park last weekend as he did well in the final exam. We were very happy because it was the first time for us to go to a park with the theme of automobiles.

After breakfast, we arrived at the entrance of the park. By that time, there were already many visitors queuing up to buy tickets. When it was our turn, the ticket seller told us that in order to celebrate the upcoming Children's Day, children under 10 could enjoy a 50% discount this month. Therefore, John got a ticket for half the original price. He jumped with joy as he could use the rest of the money to buy an ice cream. When we got into the park, John wanted to go to the mini racing area with obstacles. Then we walked there along the pathway.

A pond suddenly came into view. It was full of lotus flowers. We stopped and took a picture. After that we bought two sandwiches at the store we passed by. The sandwiches were so good that we bought two more. We were stunned when we saw the mini racing area. The obstacles there were designed to be very challenging. At first, John was worried that he could not finish the race. I encouraged him while helping him with his safety helmet. Even though some curves were really difficult to cross, John and I were excited as we finally reached the finishing line.

We took a lot of pictures in the park. The first one shows that John and I were enjoying the ice cream. The weather was hot and it was really refreshing to have something cold. Another picture is John and I taking a rest by the pond. We felt very relaxed sitting there and it was also my most enjoyable moment. The next picture shows John and I in the mini racing area. I like this picture best. We were crossing the finishing line together! I remember we high-fived each other as we succeeded in overcoming all obstacles! We had a great time last weekend and look forward to visiting the park again!
